

THE VALUE OF A HEALTHY SKIN

A SPENCER SUPPORT FOR SACRO-ILIAC AND LUMBO-SACRAL CONDITIONS

Spencer Sacro-iliac Support

(At right) Shadow-graph shewing position of Inner Belt and Pad. The immobilising bandage is 3" wide and fits closely around the pelvis exactly between the trochanter and the iliac crest, and incorporates a wedge shaped pad, which, bevelled at the edges, rests over the sacrum. The bandage can be adjusted to any degree of tightness required, and is instantly adjustable (from OUTSIDE the support) by means of flat straps and self-locking slides.

Many women are now engaged in occupations which place a heavy strain upon the fascia and muscles of the back. The majority of women are found to hold their bodies abnormally or stand incorrectly. Many women suffer from the pelvic relaxation which takes place during pregnancy, as well as from lumbar curvature created by increased abdominal weight and strain on the muscles of the back.

For those cases among women which are diagnosed as sacro-iliac or lumbo-sacral affections, with their attendant painfulness, traumatic irritation and abnormal irritabilities, the Spencer Support designed especially for the individual patient for the specific condition is generally found most satisfactory in relieving the condition and in quickly alleviating the unpleasant accompanying symptoms.

It is important that the support prescribed for lumbo-sacral derangements be sufficiently high in the back to support the lumbar and lower dorsal regions and adequately long to control and influence the pelvic inclination. A Spencer Sacro-iliac Corset or Belt with concealed lumbo-sacral pad provides definite relief.

Only by having the support individually designed can the exactitude of fit which is necessary be achieved. That is why every Spencer Support is especially designed, cut and made, for the one patient who is to wear it.

BRIEF BUT POWERFUL ACTION

Rapid Recovery

Pentothal Sodium (Abbott) is a powerful hypnotic of the thio-barbiturate group. Injected intravenously, it produces prompt sleep with rapid recovery. Being a non-volatile anaesthetic, its effects are not entirely controllable, but it is so rapidly destroyed in the body that when properly administered in dilute solution by the intermittent method, it approaches the minute-to-minute controllability of inhalation anaesthetics. ● Pentothal Sodium has been extensively used experimentally for short operative procedures in which intravenous anaesthesia was more convenient than block or inhalation anaesthesia, or where the latter were contra-indicated. It has been reported to be more powerful and rapid in action than other barbiturates; to give a smooth and pleasant induction to anaesthesia with better relaxation and rapid recovery; and to produce jactitation but rarely. ● Pentothal Sodium is not recommended for use in major operative procedures requiring prolonged anaesthesia, and its use should be undertaken only by experienced anaesthetists or surgeons who have at hand facilities to combat problems involving respiratory depression as well as carbon dioxide and oxygen imbalance. ● Pentothal Sodium is issued in ampoules containing 0.5 gm. and 1.0 gm. of the drug. ● The coupon is for your convenience in requesting literature.

Blackcurrant Syrup in Modern Therapy

HIGH CONTENT OF NATURAL VITAMIN C

War conditions have focused attention afresh on the therapeutic qualities of blackcurrants—witness the recent Ministry of Health issue of the puree for children. Nor is this new recognition attributable alone to wartime difficulties in obtaining natural vitamin C from oranges, lemons, etc.

Blackcurrant Syrup now stands as one of the richest sources of natural vitamin C. The Fixson and Roscoe comparison showed 136 to 220 mg. per 100 gm. for blackcurrant juice as against 22 to 89 mg. for orange juice.

In Ribena Blackcurrant Syrup, now in good supply by arrangement between the Ministries of Health and Food, the physician has at hand a therapeutic syrup not merely high in vitamin C (20 mg. ascorbic acid per fluid ounce) but having also the associated factors of the natural vitamin.

Diluted as directed, Ribena is acceptable to the robust and, what is perhaps of greater moment, is assimilable by those whose toleration of alternative sources of vitamin C is doubtful.

Controlled price: 2/1d. per bottle (approx. 13½ ozs.).
