NOTICE TO CONTRIBUTORS

1. Papers dealing with any subject of interest to the postgraduate will be accepted at the discretion of the Editor.
2. The following sections of the Journal are to be noted.
  - (a) Original articles, reports or investigations.
  - (b) Discursive articles, usually written at the request of the Editor.
  - (c) Practical, teaching, and historical articles.
  - (d) Clinical case reports, either of unusual cases or a series illustrating one particular symptom or sign.
  - (e) Notes on new instruments or the results of clinical trial of new drugs, etc.
3. All papers for publication must be in the hands of the Editor at least six weeks before the proposed date of publication.
4. All papers should be typewritten as concisely as possible, with double spacing and a good margin. Sub-headings should be clearly shown. Manuscripts must be carefully revised. Apart from minor typographical errors, multiple alterations in the galley proof may be charged to the author.
5. Papers may be illustrated with six or less illustrations, electrocardiographs, X-rays, or line drawings, etc., free of charge. Blocks will be made and all will be presented to the author. Should further illustrations be required the cost, except in certain circumstances, must be defrayed by the author.
6. References to papers or other publications in the text must be shown by giving the name of the author and the year of publication (with or without brackets). At the end of the paper these references should be arranged alphabetically according to the R.S.M. system. Thus: (If to a Journal)

Author's name (year), journal, volume, page, e.g.
 ATKINSON, J. (1921), J. Biol. Chem., 47, 134.

(If to a book)

Author's name (date of publication), title of book, place of publication, e.g.
 BROWN, C. D. (1935), "Diseases of the Skin," London.

Reprints of articles may be obtained at reasonable cost provided notice is given when returning the corrected galley proof.

All authors are given a year's subscription to the Journal, and if desired a small honorarium to cover the cost of producing the manuscript.
