

IN BRONCHIAL ASTHMA

1600: "The specifics commonly used for moist asthmas are the roots of Cuckowpint, Hyssop, Horehound . . . the syrup or volatile salt of Tobacco; Gum Ammoniac (above all) dissolved in vinegar. Compound Spirit of Verdigrise, dulcify'd Spirit of Nitre, Turpentine . . . Balsam of Sulphur . . . Juice of Woodlice with wine (an incomparable medicine) and the carminative spirit if the stomach be disordered." MICHAEL BEMULLER, Professor of Physic, Leipzig.

Today: The "incomparable medicine" in bronchial asthma is 'Neo-Epinine.' Patients obtain relief without the discomfort of repeated injections, the side-effects of adrenaline, or the sleeplessness of ephedrine medication. 'Neo-Epinine' is administered sublingually as a compressed product or by oral inhalation as Spray Solution.

Here's metal more attractive

HAMLET, ACT III, SCENE II

IRON in readily assimilable form is the metal so vital for the successful treatment of hypochromic anaemias.

Of the iron compounds usually given by mouth, ferrous sulphate is generally recognised as the most effective.

In 'PLASTULES,' ferrous sulphate is presented in its most attractive form—as a semi-fluid in a capsule which rapidly dissolves in the stomach, thus ensuring maximum absorption. 'PLASTULES' induce a rapid response without gastric upset.

'PLASTULES' are available in four varieties: Plain; with Liver Extract; with Folic Acid; and with Hog's Stomach.
